Entering its 24th season, the four-time Emmy-nominated COPS once again takes viewers across the United States, profiling some of the country's finest law enforcement professionals and most interesting suspects. The trailblazing series was one of the first reality shows to introduce the cinema vérité style to network television and has gone on to become a cultural phenomenon.

As one of the longest-running primetime series currently airing on broadcast television, COPS consistently ranks No. 1 in its time period among Adults 18-49 and key male and female demographics and has ranked No. 1 on Saturdays among primetime entertainment programs for 11 of the past 12 seasons.

COPS has profiled law enforcement agencies in over 140 U.S. cities and has filmed in Europe, Asia and Central and South America. It was the first American television program to follow police in the former Soviet Union. In the upcoming season, COPS will cover the U.S. from coast to coast, filming police activity in California, Florida, Texas, Ohio and Nevada.

Created by John Langley, COPS is produced by Langley Productions, Inc. and Fox Television Studios. John Langley and Morgan Langley are executive producers, while Zach Ragsdale serves as producer.
